Welcome to the 2024-25 EMC catalogue.

Awe and Wonder!

This year we are particularly excited by our new anthology – Awe and Wonder: An EMC Anthology of Nature Writing (p4). With 20 brilliantly-written texts on nature and the environment, this is a collection to show students how powerful, exciting and moving non-fiction can be, while engaging them in increasingly pressing issues. As with other recent anthologies EMC Poetry Playlist (p9) and Iridescent Adolescent (p6), the anthology is accompanied by free downloadable PowerPoint resources.

EMC Free

On our new website it's easy to find all our free downloadable resources – just click 'EMC Free' on the top menu bar to browse the full list of free publications. As well as resources to accompany print publications, there are chapters from resources such as Spotlight on Literacy, complete publications on new novels (such as When Shadows Fall) and a whole wealth of revision materials, including PDF versions of our Revision-in-Action series.

This year we have two new full publications – New Directions for A Level Language Students (p31) and EMC Approaches to Rhetoric (p16).

Free downloads can be ordered by anyone who's registered a UK Educator Standard or UK Educator Admin account.

EMC Hybrid – Print & Digital Assets

Many of EMC's physical/hard copy publications include audio-visual materials – on DVD and CD. These materials are now all available in digital format. They will be added to your school account ready to download as soon as you see the successful order screen.

Last Chance to Buy!

Publications which will not be reprinted are flagged throughout the catalogue. Look out for the 'While stocks last' flashes.

EMC Curriculum^{plus} – Bespoke

In 2017 we introduced EMC Curriculum^{plus}, a way for departments to resource a substantial part of their KS3 curriculum using EMC's pupil anthologies. Since then we have published many more anthologies, including Iridescent Adolescent, EMC Poetry Playlist and Awe and Wonder, as well as our student creative writing workbooks, Just Write and Write On. Our new EMC Curriculum^{plus} Bespoke Package (p13) allows departments to create a curriculum to suit them, drawing on the full range of EMC pupil anthologies and workbooks. To qualify for significant discounts you will need to order at least 30 copies of at least five EMC student texts, anthologies or workbooks. Email your requirements to web@englishandmedia.co.uk and we'll be in touch.

New! EMC Webinar Package

In the catalogue you will also find information about our magazines for advanced level students (p27) and our exciting new EMC Webinar Package. Buy the termly package for £175 and your whole department will be able to attend all short afternoon and twilight webinars, live or on-demand, together or individually. See pages 22-23 for full details.

Our new anthology offers some of the most interesting voices in 21st-century nature writing – plus some classic voices from the past.

Addressing the natural world from diverse perspectives and points of view, this is an anthology both to excite young people about the natural world and give them access to excellent writing.

An exciting resource for English teachers looking for engaging literary non-fiction, this anthology could also appeal to science or geography teachers, or tutors looking for texts to stimulate discussion.

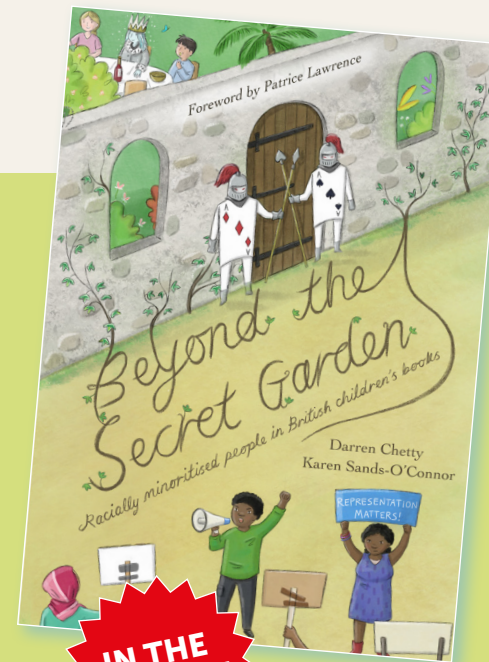

Free downloadable resources in PowerPoint and PDF form will be provided to accompany the anthology.

IN THE PIPELINE

Beyond the Secret Garden

Children's Literature and Representations of Black and Racially minoritised People

£24.95

Paperback

ISBN: 978-1-906101-74-9

Drawing on and expanding their long-running blog for Books for Keeps, Darren Chetty and Professor Karen Sands O'Connor trace how Black and racially minoritised characters have been represented in 'the secret garden' of British children's literature from its earliest stages. Examining how children's literature has both been shaped by, and shaped, prevailing attitudes towards people of colour, they take a thematic approach that offers teachers and parents contextual knowledge that will enrich how books are discussed with children.

Darren Chetty taught in primary schools for over twenty years. His essay in the best-selling The Good Immigrant has been used in schools, and universities and shared widely in children's and young adult publishing. Professor Karen Sands O'Connor is British Academy Global Professor of Children's Literature specialising in the history of Black, Asian and Minority Ethnic children's literature and publishing, and the author of three books on children's literature. In addition to their Books for Keeps column, Darren and Karen advise on CLPE's Reflecting Realities research and contributed to the CILIP Carnegie Awards Diversity Review.

100-199 copies: £7.50

200+: £5.00

160-page, pupil book

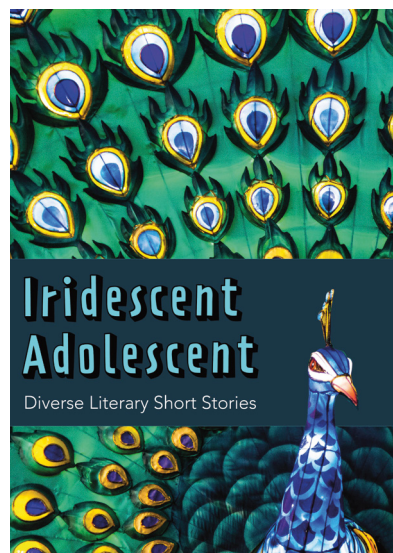

ISBN: 978-1-906101688

EMC's popular anthology brings together the principles behind both Literary Shorts and Diverse Shorts, to offer a wide and exciting range of short stories that challenge and engage students.

In putting together this anthology featuring new and established writers, we did a lot of reading! The stories which made it into Iridescent Adolescent exemplify the best of the contemporary short story, reflecting not only diverse voices but diverse approaches to the form. All offer plenty for students to get their teeth into thematically and all provide opportunities for literary discussion – both creative and critical.

Stories in the anthology by:

Chimamanda Ngozie Adichie, David Almond, Margaret Atwood, Barbara Bleiman, Rebecca Boroson, Anita Desai, Neil Gaiman, Jessie Greengrass, Caroline Hadilaksono, Barbara Jenkins, Earl Lovelace, Alison Macleod, Shirley Jackson, Milly Jafta, Jamil Jan Kochai, Phoebe Roy, George Saunders, Kamila Shamsie, Ayesha Manazir Siddiqi.

'A much needed resource for enlivening short story study in the classroom and an essential addition to school libraries.'

Victoria Rogan, The Use of English

160-page, pupil book with free downloadable resources

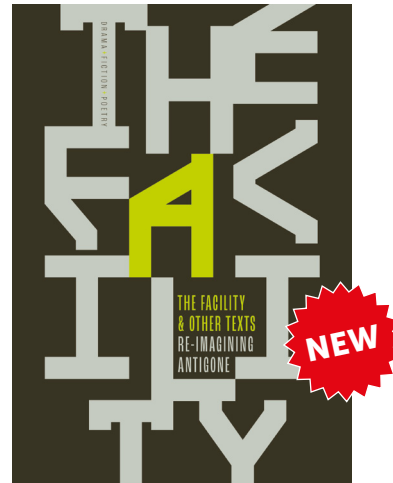

ISBN: 978-1-906101-70-1

The latest in EMC's Cultural Conversations series, The Facility and Other Texts – Re-imagining Antigone is a collection of specially-commissioned new writing for KS3 by poets Valerie Bloom and Inua Ellams, short story writers Phoebe Roy and Barbara Bleiman and playwright Sarah Hehir, inspired by, and in conversation with, Sophocles' play Antigone.

The anthology also includes short commentaries by each writer exploring their own new writing in the context of the original to help students engage with the issues of the play alongside the new texts.

This innovative collection, written with the support of the Classical Association, takes the study of classical Greek drama in schools to a new level. 'The Facility', the most prominent text in this collection, works brilliantly as a stand-alone play for English and Drama work, as well as shedding light on Sophocles' original text. The short stories and poems bring even greater depth and sophistication to the conversations established by this ground-breaking piece of work.

- 'The Facility', a 60-minute play by Sarah Hehir
- 'Being Antigone', a short story by Barbara Bleiman
- 'The Dragon and the Girl' and 'A Time', two poems by Valerie Bloom
- 'Rage Against the Machine', a poem by Inua Ellams
- 'I Heard One Cry in the Night', a short story by Phoebe Roy
- 'A Letter from Antigone', a poem by Barbara Bleiman
- Commentaries by each writer
- Rehearsal stills of 'The Facility'
- A prose summary of Sophocles' Antigone.

- An introduction to Sophocles' play, with some exploration of its enduring impact
- Ways in which it has been adapted over time
- The nature of tragedy and myth
- Ways of exploring critically and creatively with the original texts
- Drama approaches
- Suggestions for how students might write their own texts.

Fantastic - a true classic reborn in a modern context which really helped my students identify how the themes are timeless. Clever use of language and character interpretations make this gripping throughout!

15 original short stories by Barbara Bleiman, each responding creatively to a novel, poem or play regularly studied in KS3 and 4. Although in conversation with the original text, opening up new angles or providing a commentary on them, the stories can also be enjoyed in their own right.

An Inspector Called and Other Stories is also an anthology of different genres and approaches to the short story, so allowing students to explore the flexibility of the form.

The stories transform, respond to and engage with the original texts in a wide variety of ways, all of which we hope will encourage students to experiment with their own transformations.

EMC Approaches to Rhetoric – A Practical Introduction for 11-14

Free

This free download resource aims to give students the knowledge and confidence to analyse critically the rhetoric of others and to develop their own rhetorical skills. More than this, it aims to enthuse students for rhetoric, and language more generally, sparking their interest both in the origins of the art of rhetoric and the role it continues to play in their everyday lives.

The focus is very much on 'doing' rhetoric – active, creative approaches to support students in developing their abilities both to analyse and to make use of rhetoric. Practical activities are set in the context of some light-touch information about the origins of rhetoric and its continued importance, drawing on speeches from throughout history, right up to the present day.

With thanks to the Arts and Humanities Research Council for funding this publication, enabling us to make it available free of charge.

EMC Approaches to Worlds & Lives for AQA

Downloadable resources – includes teacher resource (PDF), student materials and PowerPoints

A downloadable resource to support the teaching of AQA's new Worlds and Lives cluster for AQA GCSE.

A resource to support students in:

- Learning about the 'terms of engagement' for the reading and study of poetry as a genre, learning to recognise what's special about it
- Building up independence and confidence in the reading and critical analysis of poetry
- Developing understanding of how expert readers, academics and critics write about poetry
- Responding in increasingly sophisticated and mature ways to both studied and unseen poems.

Cultural Conversations: Poems that Inspire at KS3

£20

Download publication

Including a wide-range of poems and lyrics, this download publication supports students in exploring:

- How texts are read differently, by different people
- How that can change in different times and places
- How poems work and what makes them have a powerful impact
- How writers are influenced by the texts they've read and seen, and sometimes draw on them, or quote from them, in their own work
- How texts connect with each other, and are in conversation with each other.

Cultural Conversations: Going on an Odyssey at KS3

Download publication

Plunge KS3 students into the world of The Odyssey – and explore how this text has been (and is still being) transformed and re-made. An ideal way both to introduce a culturally significant text and to explore critically how and why it has been so influential – why it has provoked so many creative conversations!

What Matters in English Teaching

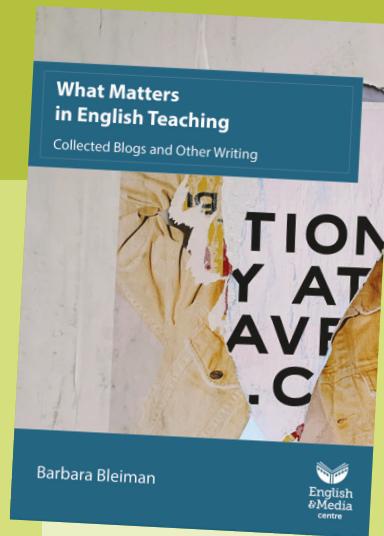

Collected Blogs and Other Writing
Barbara Bleiman

Drawing and expanding on Barbara Bleiman's thought-provoking and highly influential blogs, What Matters in English Teaching gives an informed, principled – sometimes unashamedly polemical – account of the most important issues in English teaching today. In it Barbara reflects on and argues for a particular vision of the subject – its pedagogies, practices and curriculum content. Topics covered include:

- What English is and what it could and should be
- Big picture thinking
- Challenge and text choice
- Diversity in the English classroom
- What is significant knowledge at KS3?
- Cultural capital – is it a useful term?
- Vocabulary
- Group work and talk in English classrooms
- Teaching writing, poetry and the novel
- Assessing English
- Teaching English Language
- Research, theory, practice and CPD.

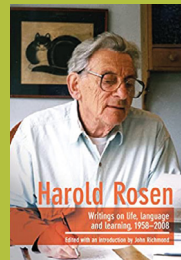

'A tour de force!'
Rachel Roberts,
University of Reading

'On the 'messiness', the rigour, the importance of English, I can't think of a book I'd rather read about English teaching then, now, and in the future, than @BarbaraBleiman's indispensable What Matters in English Teaching.'
Geoff Barton, Twitter

The genesis of EMC's Curriculum Documents

The download publications in this collection came out of an initiative set up by the Inner London Education Authority (ILEA) in the early 1980s: to examine the question of student achievement from the perspective of class, race and gender, with the aim of setting out firm proposals to improve the situation.

Forty years later the four texts offer not only a fascinating insight into the way fundamentally important questions were being explored but also remain highly relevant and a valuable jumping-off point for current debates.

Long out of print, the four texts have been scanned and published online as free downloadable PDFs.
